About ISSUP

The International Society of Substance Use Professionals (ISSUP) is an international network that unites, connects and shares knowledge across the substance use prevention, harm reduction, treatment and recovery support workforce. Our global mission is to make the work of our members as impactful, accessible and effective as possible. We do this by making it easier to discover and share evidence-based knowledge, best practice, training and networking opportunities.

ISSUP National Chapters

What are ISSUP National Chapters?

A National Chapter is part of the global drug demand reduction community. National Chapters operate at the national level, as well as engage with other National Chapters around the world. They connect ISSUP members in their own countries and help adapt the role and mission of ISSUP for different languages, cultures, and environments.

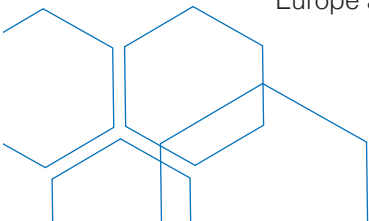

What do National Chapters do?

ISSUP National Chapters make a unique contribution to ISSUP's mission at the national level by acting as the national focal point for prevention, harm reduction, treatment and recovery support.

National Chapters grow and support ISSUP members by providing professionalisation opportunities, networking and knowledge exchange.

Where are National Chapters located?

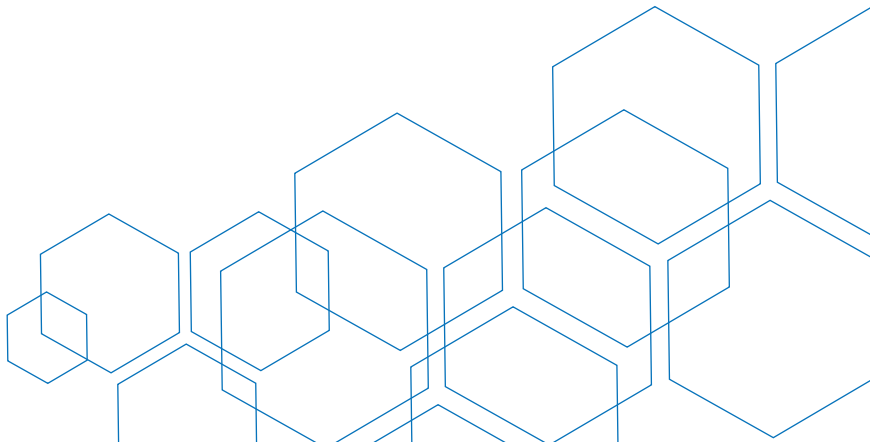

ISSUP currently has many National Chapters worldwide within different geographical regions such as the Americas, Africa, Asia, Europe and the Middle East.

The Benefits of a National Chapter

- Coordination and support to national networks of organisations working in drug demand reduction
- Establishment of strong links with major stakeholders working in the drug demand reduction field including government, national and international agencies
- Collaboration on research, training, webinars, events and practice with other National Chapters
- Sharing information, news, research and events with the international drug demand reduction community through ISSUP's website and online communications
- Access to important learning, research, news and information from other countries
- Training the national workforce
- Attending regional and global events
- Becoming a member of the international ISSUP family

How do I learn more?

You can learn more by visiting the ISSUP website - www.issup.net/national-chapters. Here you can find out if a National Chapter exists in your country, view latest news, have access to networking opportunities and find contact details.

If there is no National Chapter in your country, please contact us with details of your organisation at nationalchapter@issup.net to express interest.

Interested in joining ISSUP?

The main benefit of being part of a National Chapter is the opportunity to connect with other ISSUP members within your country and become part of the ISSUP global family.

ISSUP membership is free and offered at four levels to suit everyone from experienced professionals to students, volunteers, or anyone with an active interest in this field. Becoming a member of ISSUP is simple. You can join ISSUP by visiting our website - www.issup.net.

Members can access a wealth of resources, networking tools, and opportunities to learn about other National Chapter activities, receive our newsletter and much more!

Follow ISSUP on Facebook, X, LinkedIn and YouTube where our latest news and updates are featured. Our accounts are dynamic and fast-changing, allowing our digital community to connect and grow.
